¡Bienvenidos a Honduras!

¡Hola!

If you are reading this National Profile, it means that you either have decided or are making up your mind about going a period abroad. You will leave your familiar surroundings, your family and friends and take a step towards the unknown.

Curious to experience new things and discover exciting new places, the question arises: where to go? In the following pages, we want to give you interesting information about Honduras to help you make your decision.

Honduras is a five-star country! We could say that Honduras, located in the heart of Central America, has five great worlds, or stars: Ethnic Diversity, Caribbean Creation, Tropical Nature, Colonial Richness and Mayan Renaissance. This variety of natural and cultural resources make of Honduras a unique destination. Unfortunately, Honduras is one of the poorest countries in Latin America; the country suffers from an extraordinarily unequal distribution of income, as well as high unemployment and underemployment rates, among other factors. Considering this, if you volunteer in Honduras, your help and support make a real difference, especially because many organisations depend a lot on volunteers' support.

Please read the following pages carefully, so that you have clearer information about our beautiful country and about the application and preparation process to become an international volunteer in Honduras!

If you have any questions after reading our National Profile, please feel free to contact us (incoming@icye.hn).

We are looking forward to welcome you in HONDURAS!

Climate

The climate in Honduras is typically tropical, but it is temperate in the higher regions.

The average annual temperature in the central portion is about 21°C. However, the coastal regions are warmer, the humidity is oppressive and the average temperature is about 29°C.

The northern region is hot and humid, the central region is moderate and the southern region is hot and dry.

Honduras has two seasons: dry and rainy.

Environment

Honduras is part of Mesoamerica. The region is considered a biodiversity hotspot due to the numerous animal and plant species that can be found here.

Honduras has humid tropical rainforests, cloud forests (which can rise up to above 9,800 feet), mangrove swamps, islets, entire islands which are natural reserves, and the second largest coral reef system in the world.

Many of the protected areas can be visited by the public. Some of the most important parks in Honduras are the Pico Bonito National Park, the Jeannette Kawas National Park, the Capiro & Calentura National Park, the Celaque National Park, the Cayos Cochinos Reserve, the wild reserve of the rivers Cuero and Salado and the Guaimoreto Lagoon.

The Rio Plátano Biosphere is one of the precious “lungs” of the American continent, second largest after the Amazon rainforest.

A little bit of History...

The 17th July 1502, Christopher Columbus, in his fourth and last trip to the Americas, arrived to the northern coasts of Honduras. After the Spanish discovery, Honduras became part of Spain's vast empire in the New World; a ruling full of slavery and mistreatment that lasted three centuries.

Honduras declared its independence from Spain the 15th September 1821. In 1822, the Central American nations annexed to the Mexican Empire of Iturbide, but it was disintegrated in 1823, and the Federal Republic of Central America was formed.

In 1838, this federal republic ended and each nation became an independent state. The Honduran flag represents: 5 stars for 5 independent states and at the same time the unity of the five Central American nations that share a common history (Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica).

Religion

Before the Spanish arrived in Honduras, each indigenous group had its own religion, which were primarily polytheistic. Christianity was introduced in the 16th Century. Nowadays, the predominant religion of Honduras is Catholicism, and there is an ascending number of Evangelic followers. There are also smaller groups that practise other religions and faiths, such as Islam, Judaism, Buddhism, Hinduism, Bahá'í Faith, among others.

A religious tradition is the sawdust carpets, which are layers of coloured sawdust laid on the ground forming intricate designs and patterns, made during processions related to Easter Week.

Religion, and both the Catholic and Evangelic churches, have an important influence in Honduran society and politics. This is especially evident in some conservative mind-sets, for example in regards to human reproduction rights, and some political policies and laws.

DID YOU KNOW...? The 14th August 1502, the first Catholic mass in mainland of the American continent was held by the Spanish conquerors at Punta Caxinas, nowadays called Punta Castilla, in the north coast of Honduras.

Export Products:

- Bananas
- Coffee
- Shrimps/prawns and lobster
- Palm oil
- Gold
- Zinc and lead concentrates
- Melons
- Pineapple
- Timber
- Tobacco
- Clothing apparel
- Among others...

Of the above, coffee, bananas, shrimps/prawns, and lobster provide the greatest income from international trade. Honduras exports mainly to the USA, Belgium, El Salvador, Guatemala and Germany.

Honduran coffee is regarded –and awarded– in the global market for its taste and high quality, and our hand-rolled cigars are considered the second best worldwide, after the Cuban Habanos. Also, in the American continent, Honduras is currently number one in exporting and producing the fish tilapia.

Perhaps the greatest untapped potential source of income for the country is tourism, which is prospering thanks to recent public and private investment, but there is still room for growth.

Honduras is one of the poorest countries in the American continent, with over 60% of the population living in what the United Nations officially classify as poverty. Most Hondurans work very hard to earn, on average, US$ 380,00 a month.

Ethnic Diversity

Living Cultures

90% of the population is mestizo ("mixed" in English), a mixture of Indigenous and Europeans.

There are several ethnic groups that represent 7% of the population that still maintain Honduran traditions and customs.

Honduras is a lovely and unique Central American country, with friendly people, charming colonial cities and vast expanses of tropical jungle. It brims with clear turquoise waters, pristine beaches, breath-taking mountains, challenging rivers and fascinating ancient archaeological sites.

The largest tropical biosphere in North & Central America, the Biósfera del Río Plátano, is located in the east of Honduras.

The Copán Archaeological Site, a World Heritage Site declared by the UNESCO, is a very much studied Mayan archaeological site in the world and offers a complete picture of how the Mayans lived.

Honduras has become attractive to adventurers and investors alike, which has led to a boom in the quality of services available to those interested in exploring -either with a backpack on a bus, or first class flights and accommodations.

Caribbean Creation

Honduras is home to the south end of the Mesoamerican Barrier Reef System, the world's second largest reef system.

The Bay Islands are one of the few places in the world where you can swim with one of the largest fish in the ocean, the Whale Shark.

The Bay Islands and Cayos Cochinos are perfect destinations for snorkelling and scuba diving!

In fact, the island Utila is one of the cheapest places in the world to get your PADI diving certification.

Trujillo

There is plenty to do in the peaceful region of the Yojoa Lake. This is a special vantage point for viewing many of the several hundred bird species. There are a few coffee plantations that can be toured, as well as a micro brewery. There are hot springs to dip in, caves to explore, and the Pulhapanzak Waterfalls to hike to.

San Pedro Sula is the second largest city in Honduras; it is a financial and industrial centre.

La Ceiba, or “Ceiba the beautiful” as it is nicknamed, is the ecotourism capital of Honduras, with many nature oriented activities. It is famous for its outstanding white water rafting and kayaking in the Cangrejal River, its rainforests, beaches and lively nightlife! Its renowned carnival –with its vibrant parades and live music– takes place during the third week of May.

Tropical Nature

Almost a quarter of Honduran territory is protected in an extensive network of national parks and reserves. Honduras possesses 107 protected natural areas, 40 of them having been officially declared as national parks, wildlife reserves, natural/cultural monuments, etc.

La Mosquitia is a vast and vibrant area of wild land that extends along Honduras' east coast. It is famous for being the most extensive wild land and jungle of Central America. It is reachable only by plane or by boat, as there are no roads that connect it with the rest of Honduras.

The Río Plátano Biosphere Reserve, a World Heritage Site declared by the UNESCO in 1982, is located here, containing both mountainous and tropical rainforests full of diverse wildlife and plant life, in which over 2,000 indigenous people continue their traditional ways of life.

Central-South destinations:

- Comayagua
- Siguatepeque
- Tegucigalpa, Valle de Ángeles, Santa Lucía
- Ojojona
- San Lorenzo
- Choluteca
- Amapala
- Yuscarán
- Danlí

Colonial Richness

More than three hundred years of Hispanic colonial history in Honduras left a trail of various religious, civil and military buildings. Various villages and cities have preserved their colonial style and have become a weekend escape destination for city residents.

Did you know that...? The Comayagua Cathedral has the oldest working clock in the whole American continent! The clock was manufactured in Spain in the year 1100 and donated to Comayagua by King Felipe III in 1636. The clock has been working for about 900 years!

Choluteca, with its beautiful old-style architecture, offers one of the best preserved colonial towns in the country.

Mayan Renaissance

The ancient Maya civilization is one of the highest cultural legacies of Mesoamerica. It is believed to have originated in the Yucatán peninsula around 2600 B.C.

The Mayas' understanding and observation of nature were the key stones of their impressive cultural achievements and scientific accomplishments in various complex socio-economic and religious activities that played an important role in: urban planning and majestic architectural achievements, sacred holistic ceremonies, religion, astronomy, mathematics (they developed the mathematical position of zero), literature (they invented a complex hieroglyphic writing combining phonetic suffixes, prefixes and detailed artistic symbols within its format), herbal healing practices, farming methods, calendar systems and in the Mayan worldview.

Western destinations:

- Marcala
- Gracias
- La Esperanza
- Santa Rosa de Copán
- Copán Ruinas
- Ocotepeque

In AD 749 the most famous monument the city ever saw was erected, the spectacular Hieroglyphic Stairway, by King Smoky Shell (on the picture to your right).

The inscription found on the hieroglyphic staircase is the longest inscription found in the Mayan World. It has been discovered that the script refers to the life and times of the Mayan rulers. There are more than 1,250 glyph blocks in its inscription. The stairway is important because many monuments of previous rulers had been destroyed by their successors, and the stairway provides the names and dates of the rulers and furthermore it narrates battles and conquests of these leaders.

In Honduras, near Copán Ruinas, the Mayas had their most important religious city: COPÁN, declared by the UNESCO as a World Heritage Site since 1980. It is known as the "Athens of the New World", where you can see the hieroglyphics and temples of one of the most documented Mayan sites.

Copán is not the biggest Mayan city in the Mayan World, however it was the predominant cultural & religious centre during the Mayan period. It mounted to be highly advanced in its evolvement of sculptures, astronomy and hieroglyphic writing.

Gastronomy

Geographically there is quite a change in cuisine from the west to the east. In the highlands of the central and western departamentos (districts), corn is the base for tortillas and most other dishes. A Copán-style pork roast is a must-try succulent whole pig stuffed with spiced corn dough and roasted in special ovens. Rice and beans are also a base for Honduran diet.

Coast food includes cassava, plantain, a vast variety of fresh seafood, and coconut. In the central and eastern territories, beef steak and pork sausage is a very popular meal. Hondurans love to eat soups, and they are made from different ingredients: from chicken, seafood, beans, etc.

Meals are usually accompanied by a “fresco” (short form of “refresco” - cold drink), usually home-made natural fruit juices and, of course, a delicious cup of black coffee to wrap things up!

Security Measures and Precautions

When you search Honduras in Google you will probably find that it is a “dangerous” country and the alerts that different countries have posted about not coming to Honduras.

But that’s not all Honduras is about.

Like most countries in Latin America, Honduras has issues with criminality, where some areas aren’t as safe as others. Furthermore, the media often point out only the negative side of the country leaving its unique beauty behind. In the larger cities such as Tegucigalpa and San Pedro Sula, it is recommended to be careful and especially aware of your surroundings.

ICYE Honduras is committed to watch over the safety and well-being of every ICYE international volunteer during their stay in Honduras, providing support when they have questions and permanent follow-up by the staff of ICYE Honduras and the Projects where they volunteer. Most of the Projects and Host Families have many years of experience hosting international volunteers.

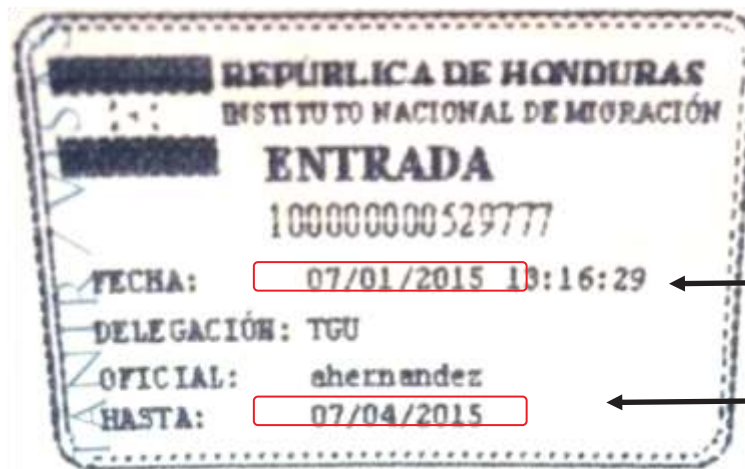

Also, during your first weeks in Honduras, we will give you more detailed information concerning Honduran reality and safety precautions, among which are:

- Be aware of your surroundings.
- Avoid walking by yourself, especially at night.
- Keep taxi company telephone numbers handy.
- When you travel, try to do so with a minimum amount of valuables and an emergency credit card. It’s best if you carry your cash in a pouch underneath your t-shirt.
- Call the emergency number 911 for any type of emergencies; fire, ambulance, violence, etc.
- Take care of your valuables, such as your phone or camera and don’t leave them unattended.
- TAKE CARE OF YOUR PASSPORT! If partying at night/travelling within the country, bring a copy of your passport or your country’s ID or driver’s license.
- Don’t carry large amounts of cash; 500 Lempiras (apx. US$25) are sufficient for going out, eating and transport for a day.

Arrival at Tegucigalpa or San Pedro Sula

What will happen when arriving at the airport in Honduras?

- In the landing/arrival card which most likely the flight attendant will give to you during your flight to get to Tegucigalpa or San Pedro Sula, please write down the address of the ICYE Honduras office (provided at the end of this National Profile).

- The migration officer has to stamp on your passport the quantity of 90 días (90 days: 3 months). Here's an example:

Your voluntary service will start!

Tips & Important Information

Intercultural Activities

Every year, ICYE Honduras organises intercultural activities in which you can share about your home country through photographs, souvenirs, national dish, typical objects, etc. You can also do so through artistic expressions (e.g. theatre plays, dances, songs).

During your ICYE Honduras Orientation Training Camp you will have the opportunity to talk about your country and family, so we ask you to prepare a nice PowerPoint presentation with pictures, videos and information you would like to share.

For this reason, we ask that you bring everything you need and think of original ideas in how to present your country, in the best way possible!

Cost of Living

Pocket Money & Local Transport Money

ICYE international volunteers coming to Honduras will receive a monthly allowance called Pocket Money, stipulated by the International Board of Managers (BoM) of ICYE. You will receive your Pocket Money from the ICYE Honduras office, as well as a fee to cover your transport from your home to your Project and vice versa. The amount will be deposited monthly in Lempiras into a Honduran bank account that ICYE Honduras will help you open. The Pocket Money is fixed to approximately cover personal basic needs.

The minimum amount of pocket money for Honduras is usually EUR € 20.36 per month, which will be deposited in Lempiras, according to the official exchange rate in www.oanda.com, at the beginning of each month, into your Honduran bank account.

Living Situation

Most of the ICYE international volunteers will live with Host Families, but others within a Residential Project. Both experiences are quite different and unique to each volunteer.

Host Family

A Host Family welcomes an international volunteer very warmly. They expect that he/she will become part of the family, sharing the rights and duties of the other members. This means, you will have to follow the family's rules. Thus, meaning that it's you that has to adapt to the family's way of life and not the other way around.

Residential Project

You may get your own bedroom or sometimes share it with others. You will become part of the Project's life, sharing the rights, duties and the life of the members that live and attend there. You'll get the opportunity to manage your time, having the right to decide what to do during your free time. All the members of the Project become a kind of "big family".

It is not possible to change the Living Situation during the whole period. However, if during the monitoring process done by ICYE Honduras, there are enough justified reasons of existing problems, and if the circumstances dictate it, we will consider looking for a new Living Situation.

It is prohibited to perform a self placement. Remember you are coming to a different culture, sometimes it won't be that easy, but you have to make some efforts to adapt. Your behaviour within the Host Family or Residential Project will result in the possibility that they'll continue hosting ICYE international volunteers.

You will enjoy this experience and cherish all the moments for life!

Voluntary Service

In Honduras, there is a great need for social work as it is among the 10 poorest countries in the Western Hemisphere. Volunteers need to come prepared with an open mind, flexibility and ready to take initiative. We expect the volunteers to be energetic, reliable, responsible, have a good attitude, quick adaptability to the Project, willing to learn Spanish and follow the rules of the programme.

In our Work Profile, you'll find a list of all the Projects available for the ICYE Programme 2020-2021, categorised in 12 humanitarian themes:
